Chapter One

CHRISTMAS

Once upon a time there lived two kind and polite children, Clara and Fritz. Their Godfather was a nice man and a clever watchmaker. He loved the children very much. One Christmas Clara and Fritz got a wonderful present from the Godfather.

“What a beautiful palace with fantastic golden towers!” said the children. The little figures were playing inside, the toy soldiers were riding the horses.

"Let us go into the palace! Let the people come out!" asked Clara and Fritz.

"I'm sorry, they can't. They are only toys!" answered the Godfather.

The sad children looked around. There were a lot of presents under the tree: picture books, beautiful dolls, sweets and chocolate. Suddenly Clara saw a little soldier in a red jacket, black boots and a hat. His clothes were rich, but he wasn't very handsome. He had a short body, thin legs and a huge mouth. He was ugly.

"I like his friendly face and kind eyes," said Clara. "Who is it?"

"It's a Nutcracker," answered the Godfather.

The children decided to crack nuts. The Nutcracker worked hard. But then Fritz put a big nut in his mouth and... the poor Nutcracker broke down.

THE BATTLE

It was time to go to bed. Clara felt sorry for the broken Nutcracker. "Just five more minutes, mom!" asked the girl. Clara took the Nutcracker and looked at him with her loving eyes. How pale and unhappy he was! Clara decided to put him in the toy bed. Then she heard a strange noise. It came from behind the walls! Thousands of tiny feet and claws tapped on the floor. Thousands of tiny eyes were looking at Clara. An army of mice! And all the creatures had their guns ready.

Suddenly Clara heard the most scary noise and saw a mouse with three heads in golden crowns. It was a terrible Mouse King! When he appeared, out of the toy castle came the army of toy soldiers. The Nutcracker was riding a horse in front of them. The battle started around Clara's feet. Boom! Boom! Boom!

"What a noise! Brave little soldiers are dying! How can I help them?" thought Clara. The next moment she took off her shoe and threw it right at the Mouse King. The room went dark and quiet...

Chapter Three

THE MOUSE QUEEN

The next morning Clara's father found her on the floor. Broken soldiers laid on the carpet. The girl woke up. "The Mouse King wanted to kill the Nutcracker! Is he safe?" asked the girl.

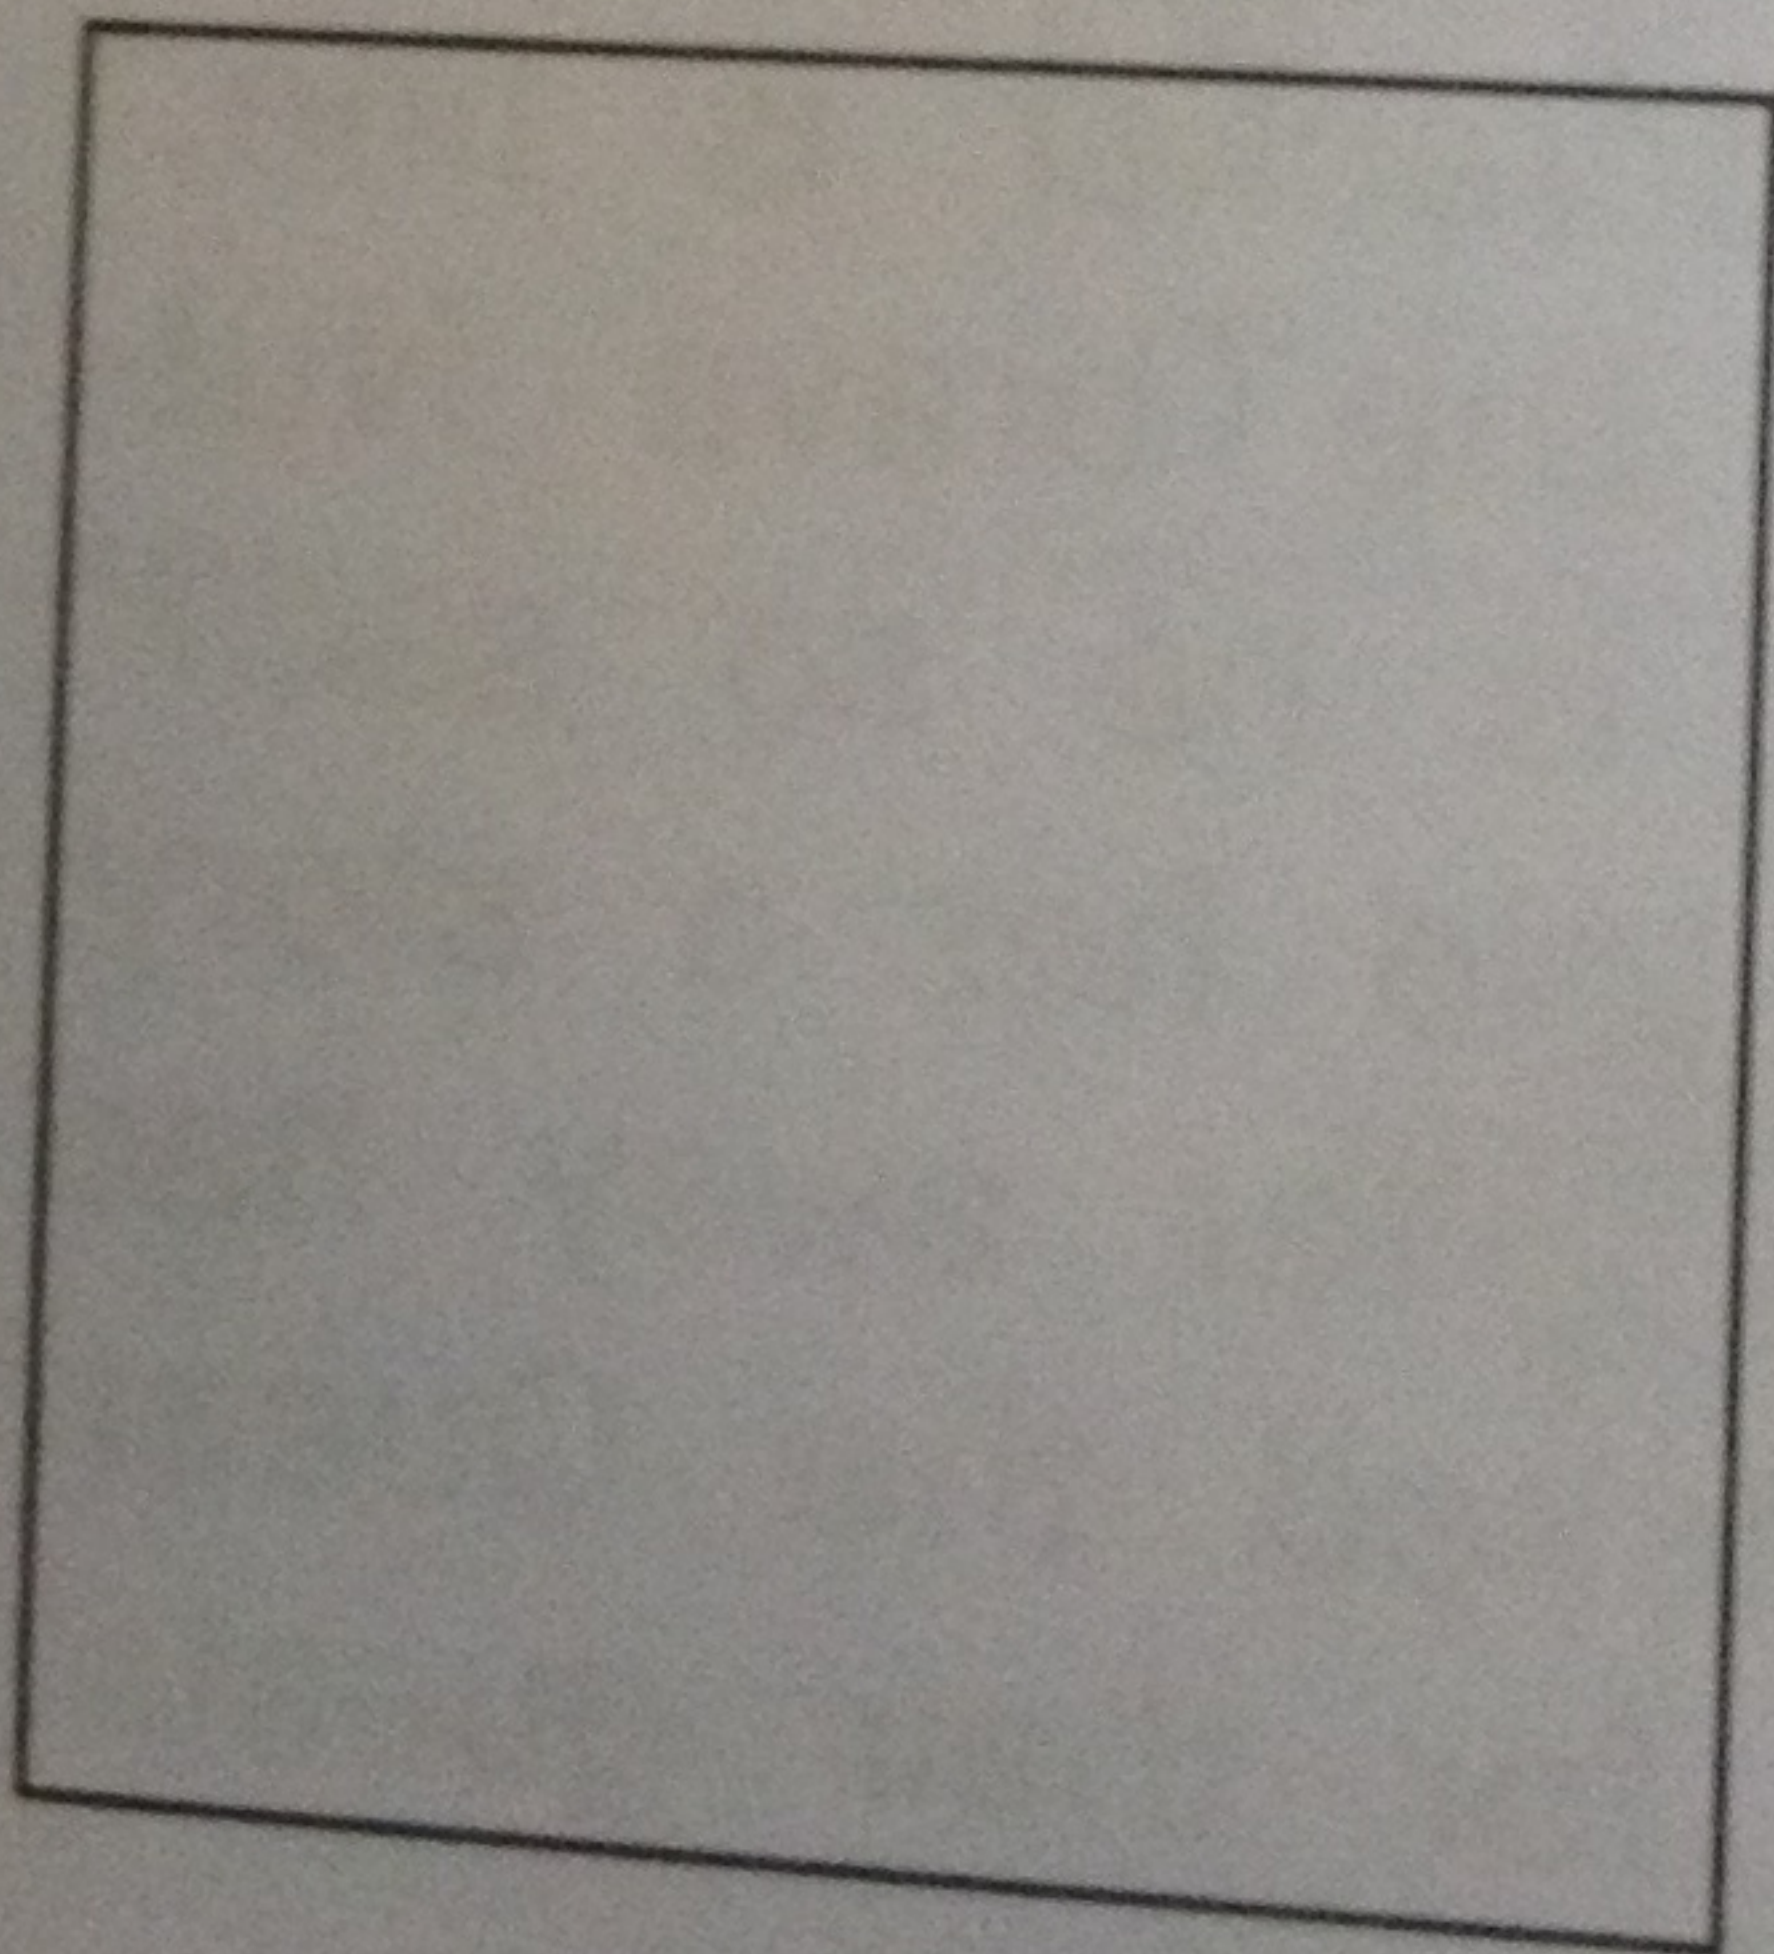

"Don't worry, dear. The Nutcracker is fine," answered her mother, giving the brave Nutcracker to the girl. "But why is he so sad?" asked Clara. And her mother told her a story.

One day a King of a land far away had a party at his palace. He asked the Queen to make the best meat pies for their guests.

When the Queen went to the kitchen, she saw a Mouse Queen. "Give me some meat, please," she asked. "I'm a Queen too!" The Queen gave her some meat but then came all her big mouse family. In a moment all the meat was gone! The King's men were very angry and killed all the mice. The crying Mouse Queen came to the Queen and said, "You killed my children and my friends! So watch out for your little Princess!" The Mouse Queen ran to the Princess' bedroom and turned a beautiful baby into the ugliest girl in the world!

Chapter Four

THE CRACKATOOK NUT

So the King went to the Astronomer and asked him for some advice. The Astronomer looked at the stars and said, "The Crackatook nut! A young man will crack it with his teeth and give it to the Princess with his eyes closed. Then, he will take seven steps back. If all goes well, the Princess will get her beauty back."

It took King's men five years to find the Crackatook and the young man! Many princes came to the King. They broke their teeth, but not the Crackatook. Only one boy cracked the nut easily and gave it to the Princess with his eyes closed. When it was his seventh step back, there came a fat mouse with three crowns on its heads. The young man didn't see it and... oh, he fell down! The next moment he became ugly. He had a short body, a big head and a stupid smile on his terrible face.

"He looks like a nutcracker," cried the beautiful Princess. "I will never marry him!"

"Poor young boy!" said the Astronomer. "I can see your future. You will become handsome again if you kill the Mouse King and if a beautiful girl loves you."

But then Clara heard the Nutcracker speak. He said, "Dear Clara, don't give anything to the Mouse King. Give me a sword and I will fight him!" The girl found a bright shiny toy sword in the cupboard and put it in the Nutcracker's hands. That night Clara heard the sounds of the battle from the living room. Suddenly, the door opened and the scared girl saw the Nutcracker. He looked very tired. "My dear Clara," he said, "The Mouse King is gone now. These golden crowns are yours! Now I want to show you something wonderful. Will you come with me?"

Chapter Six

THE SWEET KINGDOM

The friends came up to a wardrobe with a small ladder inside. Now Clara was as small as the Nutcracker! On the top of the wardrobe, the girl saw a field full of shiny caramel flowers. The Caramel Field! Then they ate chocolate berries in the Chocolate Forest and drank lemonade from the Lemonade River. Finally, the friends came to the Sweet City! There were biscuit houses, cake monuments and a Marzipan Castle in the centre.

"Brother! You came back!" cried four sugar Princesses. The Nutcracker greeted his sisters and pointed at Clara, "This is Lady Clara. She saved my life."

"Thank you, Lady Clara. You are so brave and beautiful. You are a real Princess!" they said.

The Nutcracker told his sisters the story about the Mouse King, Clara's shoe, the shiny sword... and Clara fell asleep.

When the girl woke up, she was in her bedroom again. "My dear Nutcracker, they say you are ugly. But I love you so much!" Then the door opened and in came the Godfather with a handsome young boy.
